A group of young adults, likely students, are standing outdoors in a casual setting. They are dressed in contemporary casual attire like plaid shirts and jeans. Several individuals are holding books or papers, suggesting a school or university environment. The overall mood is somewhat somber, as one woman in the center has a sad or thoughtful expression. The text 'At Some Point...' is overlaid in the center of the image.

Observation:
Something along the way sours that enthusiasm. Why? How can we fix it?

ENGAGE STUDENTS

Our Commitment to Student Testing

WE ARE TESTING OFTEN

~80 recorded interviews, with a goal of 100 more student tests for Alpha 2 of Registration.

By the end of April, we had over 200 student interviews.

Studies show you can capture major usability issues with a sample size of 8-12

Our Commitment to Student Testing

WE ARE TESTING OFTEN

We are incorporating student testing throughout our project life cycle.

We do not wait until we have actual code to take a UI to the students.

We are making sure our UI is mature once it is “out in the wild.”

Our Commitment to Student Testing

WE ARE TESTING OFTEN

Types of User Testing:

Conducting remote user testing and onsite testing with students face-to-face.

The entire team is engaged in this process, not the user experience resources alone.

It's important to see the students succeed.

A group of diverse students in a classroom or hallway. In the foreground, a young man in a plaid shirt holds a book. Behind him, a young woman looks thoughtful. To her right, another young woman holds a notebook. On the far right, a young man in a plaid shirt looks down at a book. The background is slightly blurred, showing other students and a bright, possibly windowed area.

What have we learned so far?

What Works Well:

I like how the schedule shows up so that students can see what their semester schedule will be like as they add classes.

(description, etc.) so the descriptions are always there. I also really like the way a calendar is shown so it's easy to keep up with times rather than having to go back and forth between tabs.

It was really easy to register for these.

like how the "week at a glance" is in the bottom left hand corner.

Overall
Pretty easy.
n " U

I like the layout for the most part it is easy to understand.
